
OUR FIRST PRESIDENT

Draw George like Gilbert

Gilbert Stuart's paintings of George Washington have become the best known portraits of America's first president. Stuart had to duplicate this painting so often for his patrons that he ended up referring to them as his "hundred dollar bills." One of the best ways to learn to draw is by copying—and even tracing! Finish Stuart's George by tracing over the gray areas.

OUR FIRST PRESIDENT

Draw George like Gilbert, Page 2

OUR FIRST PRESIDENT

Draw George like Gilbert, Page 3

OUR FIRST PRESIDENT

Draw George like Gilbert, Page 4

